Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running ear or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hayti Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surface of the organs.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hayti Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, etc.

Hon. "Joke" Folk may now retire to private life.

A Republican governor and a Republican senator can be credited to Joe Folk. As a party candidate we did all we could do for him, but we have always regarded him as a burden to his party.

No more striking illustration that great men make mistakes can be cited than President Wilson's appeal to the country to elect a Democratic senate and congress. No one dares to impeach his lofty desires in having back of him men of his own party who would stand behind him in these trying times, but the very mention of party lines by the President just at this time was fatal and its effect was just the reverse to what he so much desired—it gave the Republicans something to agitate, and they made good use of it.

The public is notified that regular services of Sunday school and church will be held at the Methodist church the coming Sunday, as the influenza ban has been lifted.

Walter T. Dorris came home Friday to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Ella Dorris, who was buried Sunday. He returned to Camp Pike Monday.

MAY HAVE MORE SUGAR NOW

Increase in the sugar allowance from two pounds a person a month to three pounds a month for each person in the household is announced by F. B. Mumford, federal food administrator for Missouri. Hotels, restaurants and other public eating places will be allotted sugar on the basis of three pounds for each ninety meals served instead of two pounds as heretofore.

Instead of buying sugar only in two pound purchases, consumers may now obtain a month's supply at one time on the basis of three pounds for each person in the household if they so desire.

These changes in the sugar regulations, which are effective now, were made as a result of an increase in the available supply, and the patriotic conservation of consumers in the last four months. In raising the household allowance, the Food Administration makes good its promise to do this as soon as the supplies warranted.

Extra certificates will be issued to retailers and hotels on the new basis. The following telegram has been received from Mr. Hoover in regard to the new sugar regulations:

The rapid manufacture of the new crop of beets into sugar in the West and the new crop of Louisiana cane sugar in the South, together with the freer railway transportation conditions, the reduction that we have made in the consumption of sugar in the manufacturing trades, and the patriotic conservation in the last four months, enables us to increase the household allowance of sugar from two pounds per person per month, with the same ratio for public eating places, from November 1.

This makes good our promise to increase the household allowance of sugar at the earliest possible moment that our supplies would justify, and makes it possible for the household to use more freely the apple, cranberry and grape fruit products and to use the fruits canned during the summer without sugar.

The regulations are also revised to the extent that any person may purchase his whole monthly allowance at one time if he so desires; that is, any family may purchase a month's supply for the entire family in one purchase from the retail trade.

MARINE TELLS OF FIRST FIGHT

Had Empty Feeling Inside When He Went Over the Top.

BOCHE IS COWARDLY FIGHTER

"Afraid to Take His Own Medicine," Says Marine—Describes Work of Devil Dogs in Battle at Chateau Thierry.

Paris.—He was a United States Marine. He hailed from Chicago, and I judged his age to be twenty-two or twenty-three. I did not learn his name, but during the short hour we spent together he poured out to me his personal impressions of the fighting, in which he had taken a share, at Chateau Thierry.

He naively apologized when he learned I was an American, saying: "Of course, when I've been in and out of the trenches a few times I expect it will all grow stale, and I shan't want to talk about it."

He was just a normal boy, and he related his experiences and impressions without pose or boastfulness.

"When we took over that part of the line we were told it was a quiet sector," he said, "but it didn't remain long quiet. We learned afterwards that at first the Germans thought we were British, our uniforms being somewhat alike, but when they discovered that we were Yanks they began to get curious about us. They were sure satisfied pretty quick."

Had Empty Feeling.

"What were your own personal feelings the first time you went over the top?" I asked.

"Well," slowly, "I suppose I was frightened. I had a sickening, empty feeling somewhere inside me. Just before we were to start our captain said: 'Now, boys, there's no need to feel bad about it. These men over the other side are feeling just as bad, in fact a mighty sight worse.' I remember his words distinctly, because they were the last he said, except to give the command to start. We had to advance through a field of green wheat, sappy with dew, so that we got wet through and could hardly keep our feet on the slippery ground. Our captain and lieutenant were killed right at the start, and also the first sergeant."

"We had only the gunner sergeant left, and all around the men were falling, and the air was filled with the noise from bursting shells, cries of dying men, the groans of the wounded, the singing of bullets, and the clatter of the machine guns."

"It's a funny thing, but I can remember all the different sounds as clearly and distinctly as if each one had been separate instead of all going on at once."

He paused in his talk a moment and I could see his frame stiffen at the mere recollection. Then he added, slowly and with emphasis:

"I've never been what you'd call a praying chap, but I prayed hard then, and many times since."

I nodded in agreement, for the war has taught many people how to pray.

After a moment I said: "Yes, and then?"

"Well, we saw pretty soon that if we didn't hurry up and get to the wood there wouldn't be any of us left to take it—so we just hiked like—as if—well, as if it was an express train that we just had to catch or bust. And when we got there it didn't take us long to clear the Boche out. He would go on firing until we were right on top of him with the bayonet and then he'd yell out 'Kamerad,' and hold up his hands. The Boche ain't a sportsman; he's afraid to take his own medicine."

"To H— With 'Kamerad.'"

"Even in the midst of the fight I couldn't help laughing out at the man alongside of me. He had seen his chum fall and came on just wild, and when he was going for one German the Boche yelled: 'Kamerad, I've a wife and ten children in Berlin,' and the marine said: 'If you went back to Berlin there'd be ten more children—to h— with you,' and rammed him with his bayonet."

"What happened after you cleared out the Hun?" I asked.

"By that time we were reduced to about half our company, and were ordered to dig ourselves in. You should have seen me dig! Some of us had lost our picks and we dug with our hands, our cups, or anything we could make use of. What in an ordinary way I should have considered a good half day's work I did in half an hour. They were not proper trenches, just shallow ditches, deepened shell holes."

"Men were falling all around and two bullets went through my pack as I crouched as near the ground as possible digging like h— . So I took my pack off and put it on the parapet to the side of me, and the Germans kept on popping at it. While I was digging every time I looked up to throw the dirt out I could see a flower moving to and fro in the wind just in front of me, and then once I glanced up just in time to see that flower nipped off as if by an invisible hand and lie on the ground. Somehow that made me realize almost more than anything how near death was."

SEED CORN SELECTED IN AUTUMN IS BEST

Secure It From Stalks That Have Shown Superiority.

More Profitable and Satisfactory Than Taking From Cobs in Spring—Early Maturing Ears Are Most Easily Found.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seed corn should be selected from stalks standing where they grew because only then, with certainty, can seed be obtained from—

Stalks that have a tendency to yield well as shown by their superiority over

Select the Best Ears This Fall for Next Year's Seed.

surrounding stalks that grew under the same conditions. (Such seed inherits high producing power.)

Stalks without suckers. (Such seed produces fewer suckers than seeds from sucker-bearing stalks.)

Storm-proof stalks with ears at a desirable height.

Seed corn should be selected as soon as it matures because—

Desirable stalks, especially early maturing stalks with hanging ears are then most easily found.

Freezing weather injures the seed before it becomes dry.

Warm, hot weather may cause kernels to sprout before drying.

If the selection is delayed in the South the ears may become infested with weevils, rain moths, and their eggs.

It is as easy, more satisfactory and much more profitable than selecting from cobs in the spring.

CAUSES FOR WASTE OF GRAIN

Methods of Preventing Leaks in Thrashing Given in Bulletin by Agricultural Department.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If a thrashing machine fails to separate all the grain from the straw it usually is because the machine is not being run at its proper speed; is being crowded beyond its capacity; the cylinder fails to thrash all the kernels out of the heads, the separating mechanism is not level, or the blast is not adjusted properly.

Methods of preventing these and other causes of waste are given in Farmers' Bulletin 901, "The Efficient Operation of Thrashing Machines," just issued by the United States department of agriculture.

Cracked grain is another source of waste which may become serious. Cracked grain may be due to excessive speed of the cylinder, to the cylinder being too close to the concave teeth, or to grain being returned in the tailings elevator and run through the cylinder repeatedly. Loss both from poor separation and cracked grain can be largely prevented by proper adjustment of the machine and attention to it while in operation.

ORDER GRAIN SACKS NOW

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Grain growers, order your sacks now. If this is not done some growers may find that when they are ready to use the sacks they will not have an adequate supply. This year the local dealer will not carry as large a supply of stock as he has in previous years, but will order only enough sacks to meet the needs of his trade. For this reason grain growers should let him know as soon as possible how many sacks they will need, so that by placing his order early any delays in transportation can be avoided. Make sure of your supply—help your dealer, and the manufacturers by ordering early.

Sell the Good Eggs.
If you haven't already done so, swat that rooster and market infertile eggs. But do not sell eggs that you would not use at home.

Lessens Yield of Corn.
Pulling fodder lessens the yield of a 10 to 15 per cent.

MONEY TALKS

To be sure money talks, especially money that is actively employed. Money that is idle is money asleep, and money doesn't talk in its sleep.

If you could hold all the money that passes through your hands it would be a fine thing for you, but if everybody else followed the same plan where would you get yours? The place for money is in a reliable bank like ours, safe but subject to your check. Hoarding money takes it out of circulation, and it is constantly liable to be lost. Money on deposit talks, and the things it says to you are "security, comfort, satisfaction." We invite you to open an account with us.
